TIC COMPLIANCE CODE IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINES

4. APPLICATION OF COMPLIANCE PRINCIPLES

The TIC (Testing, Inspection and Certification) Council is an international federation that is established by combining IFIA and CEOC members representing the independent third party verification services to protect and improve the quality and scope of the services offered by the sector and to encourage the cooperation between the organizations in the sector. The TIC Code is the compliance code published by the TIC Council.

The value Türk Loydu provides to its customers is trust. The success of Türk Loydu depends on the perception and trust of the parties it cooperates with as a reputable institution. For this reason, it has integrated the TIC Code that built on the basis of trust and integrity into the company's quality management system and reviewed its Ethic Code in parallel.

The TIC Code is intended for the execution of technical and commercial activities within the scope of professional behavior and ethical understanding of the principles listed below.

- Integrity
- Conflict of Interest
- Confidentiality and Data Protection
- Anti-bribery
- Fair Business Conduct
- Health and Safety
- Fair Labour

In order to determine the principles regarding the implementation of these principles, Türk Loydu's Compliance Programme, TL-07 TIC Code Compliance Manual has been published. In order to ensure the effectiveness of the implementation, the Compliance Program is audited annually by an independent organization and the results are reported to the TIC Council.

Regarding Türk Loydu's Compliance Program, you can reach the Compliance Officer via compliance@turkloydu.org to receive support, including all your suggestions, comments, complaints and questions or to report violations that you have witnessed or suspected.

All parties involved with Türk Loydu can convey their concerns or report an actual or suspected violation comes to their knowledge in scope of the Compliance Program without the threat of harassment, intimidation or retaliation. The personal information of the parties who reach us through the support line are kept confidential, without prejudice to legal obligations or to protect the rights of the company or the individuals accused wrongly or in bad faith.

Compliance Officer : Aydın GÜRBÜZ

Support Line : compliance@turkloydu.org

4.1 Integrity

TL is an independent, impartial, reliable, specialized, organization which renders classification and conformity assessment services; aiming to safeguard life, property and the environment. TL lives on its reputation and acceptance of its technical work can only be maintained by continuously proving integrity and competence. The existence of TL in the framework of its principles, is possible with the activities carried out by the employees. TL employees meticulously apply these "Code of Ethics" prepared in line with the principles of integrity, confidentiality and data protection.

"Code of Ethics" aims good faith, integrity and excellence of TL employees when carrying out their activities. The execution of these "Code of Ethics" is an important measure for sustainability of TL reputation. TL employees are always conscious of the fact that each activity carried out by them is taken as indicative of TL.

TIC COMPLIANCE CODE IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINES

Regarding the business sectors in the TL's field of activity, TL employees complies with the industry-specific integrity rules published by the TIC Council, if any.

KA31 Confidentiality, Independence and Impartiality Commitment is distributed to all TL employees and signed separately. The content of this commitment includes the condition of compliance with the KA90 TL Code of Ethics. TL publishes its code of ethics on its website.

TL cooperates with all other parties whom it is in cooperation processes, such as; purchasing, subcontracting, consultancy etc. ethically, morally, fairly, impartially, honestly and loyally in order to protect legitimate business rights and interests.

TL Employees must maintain adherence to the Ethical Principles in the event that a customer abuses the employee's tolerance to achieve acceptable results.

To achieve this;

- Employees perform the job accurately, on time and in accordance with the relevant rules and requirements.
- Does not issue / approve / stamp any certificate / document without completing the relevant service.
- Carries out their duties with the awareness that they represent the company, that they should always contribute positively to the Company's reputation, and that they should avoid acts that may harm the Company's image.

4.2 Conflict of Interest

TL executes its activities without making distinction among demands; based on Independence, Impartiality, Confidentiality and Integrity principles, bound tightly to TL Code of Ethics. Subject Code of Ethics is also improved in accordance with TIC Compliance Code. It executes these activities as an Incorporated Company of a foundation and has no relationship based on profit with any organization. The personnel work independently, without being interfered by interior, exterior, commercial, financial and other pressures. They do not interact with any group's or organization's profit relationships and they cannot be taken under control.

TL employees may not engage in any financial or other conflict of interest that might cause conflict with their professional activities, significantly impair their impartiality, ability to make decisions based on objective evidence, or provide unfair competitive advantage in favor of any person or organization.

TL employees;

- Cannot be a partner or shareholder of a supplier, service provider, subcontractor, subcontractor, customer or competitor, directly by themselves or through their relatives, friends or other intermediaries. Employees can invest in publicly available shares of these interested parties.

TIC COMPLIANCE CODE IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINES

However, this shareholding position is permitted in cases where the employee can not (i.e: 1/1000 share ownership) affect the activities of the relevant party as a shareholder ~~only in trace amounts~~. Employees, as shareholders, cannot make their personal wealth dependent on the above-mentioned parties.

- On the stock market, they cannot be positioned next to or against a customer or competitor who will be affected by the decisions made.
- Cannot hold managerial positions or be an employee of customers and competitors.
- Do not carry out any company activities with institutions that their relatives or friends have or hold executive positions.
- They cannot take part in the recruitment processes of their relatives within TL without the written consent of the top management.

TL and its personnel responsible for performing the service are not the designer, manufacturer, supplier, founder, owner or maintainer of the substance subject to service, or the authorized representative of any party. TL and its personnel do not engage in any activity that would jeopardize their independence and integrity in their decisions. In particular, they cannot be directly involved in the design, production, supply, installation, use and maintenance of the product that is within the scope of service.

KA31 / KA89 / KA88 Confidentiality, Impartiality and Independence Commitment is signed by top management and all TL employees. In accordance with this commitment, TL employees shall not be the designer, manufacturer, supplier, installer, purchaser, owner, user, maintainer, consultant or authorized representative of any of the products, services, processes and the like within the scope of the certification and / or inspection service to be performed, in addition, does not engage in any activity that would conflict with the independence of the certification and / or inspection service to be performed; In particular, it undertakes not to engage directly or indirectly with the design, manufacture, supply, installation, use or maintenance of the relevant product or service or similar competitor product or service and committed to report the situation in the event of such a relationship.

Risk analysis is made for all personnel working in the activity areas using the KA95 Impartiality and Independence Risk Analysis form.

Conflict of interest is basically a concept that the employee is exposed to if more than one benefit is possible as a result of the decision or activity (The parties to whom this benefit will be provided may differ. For example: the employee himself, TL, other companies with a ties to the employee, relatives of the employee, managers, customers, non-governmental organizations, etc.).

For this reason, conflict of interest cannot be restricted only to the existence of financial or physical interests. TL employees does not involve in a conflict of interest. Their wages and access to benefits determined by regulations and are independent of the professional decisions they make during their business activities.

The examples below do not cover all possible cases but illustrate possible conflicts of interest.

- As a result of the subjective decision of the employee, a situation in favor of the customer occurs, therefore the customer is willing to work with TL in the future (TL gains benefit due to employee behavior).
- As a result of the employee's subjective decision, a situation in favor of the customers, customers, suppliers, partners, etc. other parties occurs. For this reason, the willingness of the customer to work with TL (TL gains an advantage due to employee behavior).
- As a result of the subjective decision of the employee, the occurrence of other job opportunities where TL will provide service to the customer.

TIC COMPLIANCE CODE IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINES

- A department within the company or other company affiliates gaining benefits as a result of the employee's subjective decision.
- As a result of the subjective decision of the employee, the other affected party provides convenience, discounts, gifts or incentives or similar promises to the employee or his relatives in their personal activities (Providing personal or family benefits due to employee behavior).
- Employee or employee relatives owning shares or taking managerial or consultant roles in the company with which TL has a business relationship.
- The existence of a relationships that may affect the recruitment processes of the employee or employee relatives.
- Unfair competitive advantage of TL or other parties due to the employee's subjective decision.
- Being a designer, maintainer, installer, owner, user, consultant or trainer of the relevant product within the scope of the activity employee serves on behalf of TL.
- Carrying out class or legal requirements activities of the shipowners or users whom have personal or family ties with employee.

4.4.8 Additional Guidance

In general, all cases that make it difficult for TL employees to make decisions about business activities independently and impartially can be interpreted as the impression that bribery, incentives or influence applications are carried out. Employees must develop their awareness on this issue, think critically and be aware of the factors that complicate their professional decision-making responsibilities.

Identifying situations that pose a risk to professional decision-making can be difficult in some cases. The questions exemplified below are suggested to employees to increase their awareness or analyze the case.

- 1- Why was this gift given? Is there any expectation in return?
- 2- Is the purpose of this gift offered only to establish a business relationship through means such as meeting, introduction, hospitality or courtesy? Are my professional decisions affected?
- 3- Are the costs normal? Do these advantages offered to me fall into the luxury class of gifts?
- 4- How many times have similar gifts been presented before? Does this happen often? Is it offered to other people as well?
- 5- Do I hesitate to explain this benefit that I accept in public?
- 6- Are the same benefits provided to the representatives of other companies / institutions?
- 7- If this is an organization, am I the only person participating from TL? Is there an explainable reason for this?
- 8- Would I be afraid that the organization I attended / the gift I accepted would be known by my superiors or other company employees?

4.5 Fair Business Conduct

TL commits to take a fair and transparent attitude in business relations with loyalty, sense of responsibility and good faith. It works in accordance with the highest standards of ethical and professional integrity by avoiding any activity that may be in violation of the contractual obligations and the Compliance Program.
